About Musket Cove

Malolo Lailai the home of Musket Cove and is located in the Mamanuca group of Islands. You'll find the pace of Island life a little slower than normal, just the way we like it, ensuring all the stresses you came with will be far from your mind by the time you leave. The island consists of 240 hectares with 10kms of palm fringed beaches and hiking trails.

About us

The resort is family owned and has been in the hospitality industry for over 50 years. During your stay you will be hosted by 150 extremely warm and hospitable staff who, like us, treat this as their home, and you as our guests.

Island History

In 1872, Malolo Lailai was sold to John Thomson by Ratu Kini, a Nadroga Chief (Chief of the area). Malolo Lailai being uninhabited, was purchased to plant cotton, which was in scarce supply at the time. Thomson died in 1876 and Malolo Lailai was sold to an American named Louis Armstrong. Armstrong later died bankrupt and the island was transferred to the Mortgage Agency of Australasia Ltd, who sold and transferred the island to James Borron in November 1891. Borron leased Malolo Lailai to a Chinese family by the name of Wongket for 70 years to grow copra.

However, with Wongket's agreement to cut short the lease and some years later, it was sold to three owners, Richard Smith, Reg Raffe & Sir Ian MacFarlane. The three then renamed Malolo Lailai as Leeward Island in the late 60's. In the early 1970's the three gentlemen decided to part ways and individually manage their portion of the island. By then the airstrip was built which ran as a boundary and divided the now Plantation Island Resort and Musket Cove Resort. In 1969 Plantation Village Resort opened with six rooms, now known as Plantation Island Resort.

Smith started building Musket Cove, which was then casually known as Dick's Place and on the 03rd of October 1976, Musket Cove Island Resort was born. The resort opened with twelve Bures and some 40 years later, Musket Cove proudly stand as Fiji's Oldest Resort Company boasting a diverse range of Accommodation choices with 64 Bures and Villas, Villa residential development, Marina, a day Spa, Bar & restaurant. In the year 2000, Sir Ian MacFarlane sold his share of Malolo Lailai to the remaining two partners. The islands ownership boundary is now defined by the airstrip, with the 400 acres north of the airstrip belonging to Musket Cove island resort. Today it is still an entirely Fijian owned and operated company with over 150 employees.

Tips and Information

A better environment ... we care

Vision and Guiding Principles

At Musket Cove, we care about the health and welfare of our employees, our guests, our community & our planet.

We are committed to providing a safe healthy work place by conserving energy & protecting our natural resources, for today and future generations.

Special consideration will always be given to employing and empowering our Fiji employees, and wherever possible, embrace environmentally sustainable, practices and locally sourced products and services.

Environmental policy

- Conserve and protect natural resources. Both marine and land based.
- Control and prevent pollution by using eco-friendly materials.
- Operate in compliance with all relevant Fiji environmental legislations.
- Promote environmental awareness, and educate our employees on environmental issues and sustainable working practices.
- Be an environmentally responsible neighbor in the community
- Develop and improve operations and technologies to minimize waste and other pollution.
- Minimize health and safety risks, and dispose of waste safely and responsibly
- Reduce waste through re-use and recycling
- Ensure the responsible use of energy, including conserving energy & improving energy efficiency.
- Communicate our environmental commitment to staff and guests.
- Use Fiji made goods, produce and services wherever possible.

Waste Management Plan

Waste management techniques generally fall into the following categories

1. Reducing ~ decreasing the amount of a product being consumed or used.
2. Reusing ~ using a product again for its original purpose without any treatment or modification (i.e. food waste to pig farm or compost).
3. Recycling ~ separating glass, plastic & tins
4. Recovery ~ extracting and using materials and energy from the waste stream products.

Management of Freshwater Resources

Water is the basis of life and wise use should always be encouraged

We strive to minimise freshwater consumption and continue to implement water-saving practices and innovative technologies throughout the resort and island. Rainfall is harvested and waste water reused to water gardens and grounds.

Water management techniques generally fall into three categories:

1. Waste ~ Reducing losses (for example, fixing leaky faucets, pipes & checking "green" patches)
2. Volume ~ Reducing consumption by using low-flow toilets and automatic shut-off faucets
3. Recycling ~ Reusing water that would otherwise be discarded.

Environmental initiatives.

1. Educate employees on waste management opportunities and goals.
2. Remind employees and visitors to conserve water ~ education and include things like water use figures.
3. Compost food wastes, grass clippings and garden debris for use in landscaping re-vegetation areas & farm.
4. Use reusable cups, dishes and utensils in outlets.
5. Investigate the use of biodegradable plastic products such as cups, plates, utensils.
6. Repurpose stained/damaged sheets & towels.
7. Recycle office paper, cardboard, newspaper, aluminium, glass, plastic where possible.
8. Replace disposable products with reusable, durable products wherever feasible.
9. Reuse incoming packaging for outgoing shipments. Envelopes and folders can be reused for routing in house mail and correspondence.
10. Purchase in bulk wherever possible, i.e. combine office supply orders into one large order ~ ordering in bulk reduces packaging waste and saves time, energy and money.
11. Purchase products in refillable, reusable or at least recyclable containers.
12. Purchase a shredder to shred office paper. Shredded paper can then be recycled
13. Check the manufacturer's claims for terms such as non-toxic and biodegradable before making purchasing decisions.
14. Install hand dryers or linen roll towels in the bathroom in place of paper towels.
15. Set up a print on demand system with printers for brochures, pamphlets and flyers to avoid having large amount of excess.
16. Train cleaning staff on the proper use of cleaning supplies and the resort's waste management policies.
17. Turn off lights and air conditioning in unused rooms, offices & outlets, i.e. in rooms that are unoccupied.
18. Clean refrigerator and freezer condenser coils every 3 months.
19. Responsible storage, use and disposal of Environmentally Harmful Substances
20. Clean air conditioning unit condensers at least once a year.
21. Check and clean air conditioner filters once each month during periods of heavy use.
22. Use the lowest washing temperature that cleans satisfactorily. Wash only full laundry loads.

Best Practice/Minimal Impact Guidelines

- No collecting anything alive or dead. Even seemingly dead things can be home to other creatures.
- No littering by dropping bottles, plastic or cigarette butts. These items can harm animals.
- Stick to walking tracks, trails and sandy areas during marine activities to avoid damage to habitats and disturbance to wildlife.
- Learn as much as you can about the amazing environment and share this knowledge.
- Promote an awareness of the impacts of personal behaviour at home on the environment and how to reduce this.

Our pets and pests

We are an island of animal lovers for which we have both local and imported animals on island.

There is a population of pet and stray cats. We try to keep the resort area free of pests, so please do not encourage any cats by feeding them.

Occasionally some village dogs will venture across from the neighbouring island. They tend to congregate at the far end of the airstrip. They are not wild, but can get nippy and intimidate. When exploring this part of the island it's advised to take a stick.

For the welfare of our local villages, guests and the animals we regularly arrange visiting vet clinics to desex and treat ailments.

Toads, Mosquitoes, Ants, and Geckos are natural inhabitants of our tropical environment. Every room is supplied with your own personal Gecko to keep the insects at bay, at no extra charge. You'll often see them on the ceiling or ledges at night, they are attracted to light sources and feasting on insects. They're our natural Insect Busters!

Ants are part of the tropics too and love to nibble on any crumbs you might leave behind. Be sure to leave areas free from food scraps to ensure the ants aren't dining out at your place.

Now the brown hopping things that come out at night, that people think are frogs, are actually Toads. Introduced to Fiji to curtail the cane beetle problem, these little critters are most active at night and after rain. They are harmless and will quickly move out of the way. We recommend that you do not pick them up.

You'll notice holes around the Resort. They're actually the home of our land crabs. They are also active at night and are extremely light on their feet.....I mean claws so you'll probably just capture a glimpse of these land lovers.

Mosquitoes are a fact of life in the tropics and we take measures to ensure they don't disrupt your holiday. We spray in the evening with an organic pyrethrum based insecticide. While this spray doesn't have a particular pleasant odor, the minimal exposure which may occur during spraying will not have any detrimental effects on humans. We suggest that those who may be particularly sensitive to insecticide stay inside or avoid the area being sprayed until the spray has settled. In the late afternoon or evening you should apply an insect repellent in order to minimize bites. Should you receive bites the Boutique is stocked with items suitable to assist.

Fiji language and culture

At Musket Cove we are proudly Fijian and although Fiji is rapidly moving into the 21st century. We endeavor to embrace local cultures and traditions wherever possible.

You will notice several traditional materials throughout the resort. Below is a little history on some of the more famous materials.

Tapa Cloth (or simply tapa) is a bark cloth made in the islands of the Pacific Ocean, primarily in Tonga, Samoa and Fiji, but as far afield as Niue, Cook Islands, Futuna, Solomon Islands, Java, New Zealand, Vanuatu, Papua New Guinea (particularly in Oro Province around Tufi) and Hawai'i (where it is called kapa). In French Polynesia it has nearly disappeared, except for some villages in the Marquesas.

The cloth is known by a number of local names although the term tapa is international and understood throughout the islands that use the cloth. The word tapa is from Tahiti and the Cook Islands, where Captain Cook was the first European to collect it and introduce it to the rest of the world. In Tonga, tapa is known as ngatu, and here it is of great social importance to the islanders, often being given as gifts. In Samoa, the same cloth is called siapo, and in Niue it is hiapo. In Hawai'i, it is known as kapa. In Rotuma, a Polynesian island in the Fiji group, it is called 'uha and in other Fiji islands it is called masi. In the Pitcairn islands it was called ahu. It is also known as tapia.

Magimagi is a product made of coconut husk. The process of weaving the husk into the traditional look is very labor intensive. The earliest record of the unique Magimagi design is listed in the Narrative of the United States Exploring Expedition by Wilkes (Wilkes, 1845). Concerning the bures that were on the island Wilkes says, "The walls and roof of the mbure [bure] are constructed of canes about the size of a finger, and each one is wound round with sennit [Magimagi] as thick as cod-line, made from the cocoa-nut husk" (p. 119). The use of Magimagi started when the forefathers of the current inhabitants of the Vulaga islands were constructing their houses and canoes: They did not have nails and screws to connect the beams and the Magimagi (sennit) was born. The unique weaved design is accomplished by Vulaga teams that are able to design many graphics into the look.

Each strand of Magimagi takes approximately 12 months to grow from seed to Magimagi coconut. Then another two days are spent by each weaver who converts the husks into a braid of 1 meter in length. The Magimagi coconut only grows in the Lau group of island in the nation of Fiji Islands. This scarce natural resource is woven into artistic beauty by the people of Vulaga who are the originators of this unique talent.

There are three different types of weaving: Talitali – this is the weaving that is done on horizontal beams. Lalawa - this is the weaving that is done on vertical beams. Malo/ Lairo - this weaving is the design insert.

Fiji Pottery

A craft that dates from the original settlement of Fiji around 1290 BC, pottery-making is still practiced in the lower Sigatoka Valley, the islands of Kadavu and Malolo, western Vanua Levu, the Rewa Delta and the province of Ra. Each district has its own distinct signature in its pottery style. Today the technique and division of labour differ little from those of pre-European contact times. Sometimes the men dig the clay, but it is almost always the women who are the potters. The clay is first kneaded, and then sand is added to control shrinkage and to improve the texture. The mixture is left to dry for a short period before being worked into its final form.

The tools used by today's potters are also the same as those used in the past: a rounded stone, a large pebble or a wooden paddle for beating; a piece of coconut husk for rubbing the clay; a shell or stick for ornamenting; and a cushion of leaves on which to place the work during the molding process. Pottery wheels were unknown to ancient Fijians and are still not used. Instead, a saucer-like section is shaped for the bottom of the pot or bowl and the item is progressively built up with slabs, strips or coils. The sides are shaped by beating the clay with a paddle or pebble. Considering the implements used, the Fijians achieve remarkable symmetry.

After the object is shaped and finished with moistened fingers or a smooth stone, it is dried for several days and fired for an hour in a fire made from brush, reeds or coconut fronds. Fijian pottery is not glazed - instead, certain plants are rubbed on the finished objects as a kind of varnish to improve water-holding qualities.

Let's Speak Fijian!

Nothing breaks down cultural barriers and kindles friendships like learning some of the local "lingo". Wrap your lips around the following tricks to correct Fijian pronunciation: The letter "b" is pronounced "mb" "q" is "ngg" (like finger) – So the Fijian name Beqa is pronounced Mbengga "c" is "th" ("then") "a" is a long sound (like "master") – so the Fijian place name Laucala is spoken Lauthala "i" is long (like "reef") "e" is short (like "step") "u" is short (like 'dune) – so the big island of Fiji, Viti Levu is pronounced Veetee Lehvu "d" is nd – so the placename Nadi is pronounced Nandi.

Emergency And Safety – Please Take A Moment To Read.

In Case of Fire

1. Kindly notify Guest Services immediately, only if this does not represent danger for you.
2. Please EVACUATE your room IMMEDIATELY no matter how small the fire, closing all doors behind you.
3. Whatever the case, ALWAYS think of your own safety FIRST.
4. DO NOT take any risks.
5. Only return to your room once it has been cleared by the management.

Fire Evacuation Procedure

Musket Cove Resort has been designed with space in mind, hence all rooms are well spaced and we are unlikely to see a small fire in one bure escalate to affect other buildings. In the event of a fire in your room the escape route is simple... Straight out the front door.

After Hour & Emergency Contacts

Should you require assistance after reception hours, you can contact the main Bar at Dick's Place on extension 221 or our Security team on extension 205 or our Resort Manager on extension 274. For those room categories without a telephone, there is always a phone available on the Bar at Dick's Place or reception counter.

Tsunami Warning & Evacuation Procedures

In the case of a tsunami warning being issued by the Fiji Disaster Management Centre, our staff will inform all guests via a loud hailer at which time we ask that you immediately stop what you are doing and head to the rally point which is the Musket Cove Chapel, a member of staff will be on hand to keep you updated and will inform you when the warning has been lifted by the Fiji Disaster Management Centre. Please resist the temptation to find your own evacuation spot on higher ground, this may put staff members at risk, trying to locate you. Please respect private property.

Secure your Bure or Villa

We very rarely have an issue with security of guest's belongings, however we do encourage guest to use common sense. Secure any valuables in the safe provided in your room. Simply follow the operating instructions on the door. Always lock your room when leaving. Should you experience problems with the lock on your bure, please advise Reception immediately. We recommend that you do not leave any items of clothing or footwear outside. We use good old fashioned keys and barrel bolt locking systems on the island, our locks have an additional safety feature which requires you, when unlocking the door, to insert the key first and then push in while turning in the lock. If the key is not pushed in while turning, it will simply turn around in the lock without clicking.

Unlicensed Boat Operators

Musket Cove encourages local people to comply with the Law. If you are contemplating booking vessels which are not endorsed or booked through the resort. You must be aware that the resort accepts no responsibility for accidents, injury, breakdowns, poor service or any related incident that may occur.

For your own safety please check that the vessel is currently in survey with adequate insurance and safety equipment. These operators maybe cheaper, however for your own safety and piece of mind, we strongly advise against using any operator without ensuring they have the necessary qualifications, license, insurance and registration.

Drone Policy

Due to safety and privacy concerns, Musket Cove Island Resort and Marina prohibits the operation or use of unmanned aerial systems, or drones.

The prohibition includes drones used for filming, photography or streaming. As well as any drones used by media, wedding photographers or journalists operating above or within the island boundaries.

This prohibition extends to any device launched or operated from Resort property, as well as any launched from private property, neighbouring resorts or yachts.

Please contact Joe Mar or Alex Raicebe if you have any questions or wish to seek prior authorisation to operate.

Any authorised operation of drones on or above said areas will be governed by Fiji Aviation rules and regulations. As well as those policies separately established by Musket Cove.

Any violation may involve confiscation of prohibited equipment and may subject violators to any liability for damages, including, but not limited to, damages for trespass, violation of privacy, and physical injuries to persons and /or property, as well as legal fees.

Coconut Trees

There is an abundant supply of Coconut Trees. They are a great source of shade, but please avoid lying, sitting, standing or walking directly under trees, which are heavily laden with nuts.

Water

Two bottles of Fiji water is supplied and replenished when used (more can be purchased at the Trader). There is also filtered rainwater for making tea and coffee. Those with sensitive stomachs should stick to bottled water. We recommend that you DO NOT drink the tap water.

Supply of Services and Obligations

Musket Cove Island Resort will endeavor to provide the most suitable accommodation and guest services as requested by the guest or their booking agent. However an offshore island resort holiday is an individual experience and a guest's preference and opinions may vary from those of the resort's owners, management and booking agent. For this reason we cannot take responsibility for every aspect of each guest's overall holiday satisfaction.

Musket Cove Island Resort takes guest comments very seriously and guest feedback is always welcome. Resort management is available every day to discuss with guests any specific requests, concerns or complaints that a guest may have. Musket Cove Island Resort Ltd cannot be reasonably expected to have knowledge about each guest's personal requirements, perceptions, impressions or concerns unless such information is made known to management during the guest's stay. The resort will not be held responsible to respond to any complaint that was not made direct to resort management at the time of the guest's stay.

Any claims or legal action in connection with the provision of our resort's services will be subject to the laws of Fiji.

When guests make bookings via the resort with the suppliers/organizers of services such as fishing, diving, surfing, air and sea transfers, yacht charters, water taxis and such like, the resort is acting as a booking agent if and when such services are not directly provided by the resort. Musket Cove Island Resort will not be liable for the standard of the services provided by such suppliers, or liable for any damage, injury, theft or loss of any kind (direct, indirect, consequential or otherwise) which guests may suffer, from selection of those suppliers, or the services provided by the suppliers.

Musket Cove Island Resort will not be liable for any loss or damage which arises directly or indirectly from any act of God, incidental weather disruptions, dangers incidental to the sea, fire, breakdown in machinery or equipment, disruptions to any international or domestic airline or transfer schedules or services, acts of Governments or other authorities de jour or de facto, wars whether declared or not, hostilities, civil disturbance, strikes, riots, deaths, theft, pilferage, epidemics, quarantines or medical, or customs regulations.
