CIDER & POIRÉ

Cider can range from simple refreshment to something much closer to wine. These two examples show that range clearly. Willie Smith's is a cloudy, organic apple cider from Tasmania's Huon Valley: fresh, lightly sweetened and easy to drink. Eric Bordelet's Poiré Granit is French poiré, made from pears rather than apples, with fine natural sparkle, mineral detail and a more vinous frame.

5.0%	Eric Bordelet Poiré Granit 2023	Normandy, France	28

Willie Smith's is made in Tasmania's Huon Valley from organic apples grown on the family farm. Cloudy, fresh and lightly sweetened, it is the more direct of the two: bright apple fruit, gentle texture and a clean, refreshing finish. A cider for the start of the meal, casual drinking, or whenever something crisp and uncomplicated is called for. Willie Smith's describes this cider as made from organic Huon Valley apples, with a mixture of eating apples and a small amount of apple juice used to bring lift and sweetness.

Eric Bordelet was a sommelier before returning to his family orchards in Normandy in 1992. Poiré Granit is made from old perry pear trees rooted in granite soils, giving a style that is fine, mineral and quietly complex. It carries pear fruit, citrus lift and a delicate natural sparkle, with acidity and tannin keeping the sweetness in check. Treat it less like beer and more like sparkling wine: aperitif, cheese, fruit desserts, or a gentle close to the meal. Poiré Granit is crafted from 200–300-year-old trees, with granite shaping its mineral profile.

HUNTER STREET REWARDS — MEMBERS EXCLUSIVE

For Hunter Street Rewards members, we're pouring a special Sommelier Pick from South Africa: a beautifully perfumed red from an old Darling Cinsault vineyard planted in 1951. The name marks the vineyard's first single-vineyard wine, released when the vines were 65 years old. Cinsault-led with a small Syrah component, unfolding into red cherry, raspberry, wild herbs and gentle spice; elegant with lamb, duck, steak, mushrooms and charred vegetables.

CHAMPAGNE — GROWERS IN FOCUS

Egly-Ouriet — Montagne de Reims

Francis Egly, a fourth-generation grower in Grand Cru Ambonnay, took over from his father Michel in 1980 and has since made Egly-Ouriet one of the reference points for village-led grower Champagne. Ambonnay remains the centre of the domaine: Pinot Noir-driven, structured and deeply vinous, with old vines, long lees ageing and low dosage shaping the house style. Les Vignes de Bisseuil adds another dimension. Sourced from Bisseuil in the Vallée de la Marne, it brings a softer, more open counterpoint to the power of Ambonnay and shows how Egly's work extends beyond his home village.

Frédéric Savart — Montagne de Reims

Established back in 1974, Frédéric Savart is a small grower whose wines have become one of the clearest modern expressions of the western Montagne de Reims. Rooted in Écueil, with Le Mont Benoît extending into Villers-aux-Nœuds, the domaine shows a different face of the Montagne: less about sheer weight, more about tension, texture and detail of site. The wines are incisive, low-dosage and tightly drawn, with Pinot Noir at the core but enough precision to make the Chardonnay bottlings equally compelling.

Jérôme Prévost — Montagne de Reims

Jérôme Prévost of La Closerie is one of Champagne's defining small-scale growers: encouraged by Anselme Selosse to bottle his own wine, he made his first vintages in Selosse's cellar before establishing his own voice in Gueux. From just 2.2 hectares, Prévost built a cult following around Les Béguines, a largely Meunier, single-vineyard wine that gave the western Montagne de Reims a rarer, more exacting expression.

CHAMPAGNE — GROWERS IN FOCUS

Jacques Selosse — Côte des Blancs

Since taking over at the Domaine in 1980, Anselme Selosse is the grower who most forcefully shifted Champagne's centre of gravity from the house style toward terroir. Based in the Côte des Blancs, he challenged the region's old definitions of excellence and helped clear the path for today's small, site-conscious growers. That philosophy is most clearly expressed in his Lieux-Dits bottlings: these single-parcel wines reach beyond the Côte des Blancs to Ambonnay, Mareuil-sur-Aÿ and beyond, each framed around place rather than brand. On this list, Selosse matters as one of the figures who changed our understanding of serious grower Champagne.

Pascal Agrapart — Côte des Blancs

Pascal Agrapart is one of the defining growers of Avize and a clear standard-bearer for the Côte des Blancs. It is difficult to talk seriously about Blanc de Blancs Champagne without Agrapart in the conversation. Though often placed beside Selosse, his wines follow a very different path: earlier harvests, larger and older barrels, earlier bottling, and a style shaped by cut, clarity, and restraint rather than overt oxidative influence.

Larmandier-Bernier — Côte des Blancs

Larmandier-Bernier is based in Vertus, at the southern end of the Côte des Blancs, and has become closely associated with biodynamic farming, natural fermentations and low-dosage Champagne. Pierre and Sophie Larmandier work in a dry, chalk-driven register, where texture is present but never heavy. The wines are direct and site-focused: Latitude gives a broader view of the domaine, Terre de Vertus is more precise and saline, while Rosé de Saignée shows the estate's more vinous side.

CHAMPAGNE — GROWERS IN FOCUS

Aurélien Suenen — Côte des Blancs

Aurélien represents a restless, modern edge of grower Champagne, a part of the new generation reshaping the Côte des Blancs through a more exacting, site-driven lens. From his family's traditional estate, he has pursued a singular vision of precision, purity, and pronounced minerality, transforming the domaine into one of the region's sharper terroir voices. In the glass, the current range reads as taut, chalky and intensely Chardonnay-led, with Oiry at the centre and Cramant and Chouilly adding breadth without softening the line.

01930553	2017	La Coclulette	(CH) 06/23, 3g/L	Oiry	985

Ulysse Collin — Vallée du Petit-Morin

Olivier Collin's wines are among Champagne's clearest modern expressions of individual site. Based in Congy in the Val du Petit Morin, Collin works parcel by parcel, using oak ageing and long lees contact to give the wines breadth without blurring their precision. Les Pierrières, from Vert-Toulon, is the sharper Chardonnay expression; Les Maillons, from Barbonne-Fayel in the Côte de Sézanne, brings Pinot Noir into a more generous frame. Together, they show the domaine's range across two distinct corners of Champagne.

Vouette et Sorbée — Côte des Bar

Bertrand Gautherot's Vouette et Sorbée helped bring the Côte des Bar into sharper focus as a source of serious grower Champagne. Based in Buxières-sur-Arce, the domaine is farmed biodynamically and worked with indigenous yeasts, seasoned barrels, some amphora and no dosage. Pinot Noir gives the wines their savoury Aube character, while Chardonnay from the Kimmeridgian limestone of Biaunes adds tension, depth and mineral detail. The style is vinous, layered and quietly singular.
