Built in 1884 in the style of a French château, The Royal Horseguards Hotel encompasses two iconic buildings; the National Liberal Club where historical icons such as Churchill, Gladstone and Lloyd-George would retreat from the bustle of Parliament to the Club's magnificent apartments. The hotel was also the home and office of the first chief of the Secret Intelligence Service, Sir Mansfield Cummings, and essentially the birthplace of MI6.

This summer we have created a selection of refreshing summer spritzes to whet your appetite, inspired by the hotel's incredible history.
