

Khushamadeed...Welcome

Pakistani cuisines have always had a regional character, with each of the four provinces offering their special flavors. In Punjab the influence of Mughlai cuisine is prominent in the use of Jandoori ovens. Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, the land of hospitality has the influence of Afghani cuisine, more use of lamb meat in shape of tikka, karahi, and beef chapli kabab are famous dishes of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, most of the food is non-spicy and cooked in animal fat. In Baluchistan with Iranian and Turkish influence, cooks use the "Sajji" method of barbecuing whole lamb (on large skewers over coal pits marinated only with salt) and bake the breads in a deep pit. Black Pomfret is a well-known delicacy of Sindh because of the Arabian Sea. The fish is cleaned and cooked with a variety of spices.

Ceremonial occasions such as weddings have inspired a number of delectable dishes. One of the traditional dishes at a marriage feast is Chicken Qorma with either Pullao or Biryani.

Mughlai style of cookery evolves at the Mughal court and remains centered in Old Lahore; Chicken Jandoori is from that origin. Nizam (Ruler) of Hyderabad (India) had an experimental kitchen and that is where Biryani was created and perfected.

History of the Origin of Traditional Pakistani Cuisine

Pakistani cuisine is often spicy and also known for its richness. It is a distinct blend of flavors from Afghanistan and Iran with strong culinary influences from the Middle East, Central and Western Asia. The flavors have travelled more than five hundred years and are now fused with indigenous South Asian Cuisine found in the Indus Valley and Punjab. The food also varies greatly from region to region within Pakistan, reflecting the country's ethnic, cultural and culinary diversity.

The cuisine in Sindh and Punjab can be very hot and spicy, and is generally identical to foods consumed in northern India. Food in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Baluchistan and Northern Areas is similar to cuisines found in Afghanistan, Central Asia, Iran and the Middle East, where mild aromatic spices are used. The main course is served with wheat bread (Naan) or rice. Salads generally are served with the main course rather than before. Assorted fresh fruit or desserts are consumed at the end. Meat (including Beef) plays a dominant role in Pakistani food, compared to other South Asian cuisines.

Sindh

Sindhi Cuisines have come a long way from the times of the Indus valley Civilization. It has had several influences in its past and continues to do so. Pre-partition Indian subcontinent played a prominent role in the making of Sindhi cuisines as we know them today. Due to substantial influence of its Indian origins we see many similarities between Sindhi and Indian cuisines in terms of the spicy aromatic features.

Khyber Pakhtunkhwa

Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Cuisines are strongly influenced by the rich cultural surroundings of the region. The mouth-watering flavor of cooking originates from Afghanistan, Central Asia and Middle East. The people in these regions do not prefer very spicy foods and have a more BBQ style of cooking. They heavily rely on sheep and goats for their meat requirements. The food cooked is in the animal fat which brings added flavor to the dish.
