BEAUTIFUL BARBADOS

HISTORY OF BARBADOS

Barbados is the eastern-most Caribbean island. It is located at 13.4N, 54.4W. The island, which is less than one million years old, was created by the collision of the Atlantic crustal and Caribbean plates, along with a volcanic eruption. Later coral formed, accumulating to approximately 300 feet. It is geologically unique, being actually two land masses that merged together over the years.

EARLY HISTORY

Arawaks were the first people to land and settle in Barbados. Paddling long dugout canoes they crossed oceans and currents that challenge modern sailing vessels.

They made their new home in Barbados along the coast, developing an uninhabited island into an agricultural site by growing cotton, cassava, corn, peanuts, guavas, and papaws (papaya).

The Arawaks inhabited Barbados until 1200 when they were attacked and conquered by the Caribs, a warlike and savage people who were rumoured to have barbecued their captives and washed them down with cassava beer. The Caribs inhabited the island until 1492.

The island gets its name from the Portuguese who named it Los Barbados (bearded-ones) presumably, after the island's fig trees, which roots hang down from the branches and have a beard-like appearance. This name would remain throughout the rest of Barbados' history.

Despite the Caribs' ruthless warlike abilities, the island was taken over by the Spanish in 1492. The Spanish killed off the Caribs through war, the contagious European smallpox and tuberculosis. The Spanish never settled the island but moved on in search of some of the larger islands for developing.

THE ENGLISH COLONISATION

A new period in Barbados's history began when the first English ship touched the island on May 14th 1625 under the command of Captain John Powell. The island was therefore claimed on behalf of King James I.

On February 17th 1627, English colonisation began when Captain Henry Powell landed with a party of 80 settlers and 10 slaves, who were capture en-route from a trading vessel, to occupy and settle the island. This expedition established the city of Holetown in 1627, formerly known as Jamestown. Thus began a long period of English rule that lasted 339 years and gained the island the name of "Little England".

AN INDEPENDENT NATION (1966 - PRESENT)

Barbados remained under British rule until internal autonomy was granted in 1961. Barbados gained full independence on November 30th 1966, under the leadership of the late Errol Walton Barrow of the D.L.P, however it still maintains ties to the Britain monarchy, represented in Barbados by the Governor General. It is also a member of the Commonwealth. British customs and traditions remain strong here, as does the African influence. The colourful history, which makes Barbados what it is, combines an English afternoon tea with African foods making for a unique blend.

THE SAVANNAH BEACH HOTEL HISTORY

Situated in the historic Garrison area, the presently known Savannah Beach Hotel was built in the mid 1700's as the canteen for the British soldiers garrisoned there. From the early 1800's it was known as "Sheriff's House" and in 1887 it was opened as the Seaview Hotel.

It was opened by Mrs. Piggott in 1887, but it had a checkered history. In 1997, the Seaview Hotel was taken over by Gems of Barbados. During 1998, the building was refurbished with 21 rooms and it was renamed "The Savannah Hotel".

By 2001, the number of rooms expanded to 100, the Boucan Wine Bar and Restaurant, Meeting Rooms and Conference facilities. In December 2011 it was acquired by MW Sun Hotels Inc. and renamed "The Savannah Beach Hotel."

Originally, the main building consisted of two adjacent houses, but the easternmost building is the one of major architectural interest. It is lavishly built, largely of English ballast bricks with a central hallway and double balconies, exactly like the single houses of Charleston, North Carolina. Its ornate cast-iron balconies are reminiscent of New Orleans and are of North American design; however the massive door hinges resemble the British Garrison buildings. The cannon embedded in the wall at the front of the hotel marks the division between two buildings which were joined to form one hotel. The double staircase at the end of the main corridor is typical of buildings built in the Victorian era. Because the glimpse of a lady's ankle could stir the passion of a man, ladies and gentlemen used separate staircases. The Annex was originally the home of the Adjunct General and was later turned into a restaurant.

The furniture in the lobby typifies what may have been found in an old plantation Great House. The property has several water features, including "drip-stones" which were an integral part of the old plantations. Traditionally, these three coral pots were suspended one above the other. The water percolated from the top one through the middle one and was collected in the bottom pot which was glazed. This dripping process helped to cool the water, providing clean and cool water for the family.

This hotel was one of the most frequented on the island. Its popularity was due to its convenient and delightful location, within easy reach of Bridgetown and the Hastings Rocks; there was excellent sea-bathing a short distance from the premises. The establishment was comfortable, the service competent and the cuisine first-class.

AREA BEACH & BEACHES

The beach at the Hotel is known as Drill Hall Beach. Some bajans, (as we proudly call ourselves) typically the surfers that you may see riding the waves at times, call it Brandon's Beach. On the Beach guests may enjoy the use of beach chairs, umbrellas, and a limited array of complimentary beach sports. Motorised activities are not part of the Hotel, and if guests pursue them, it is at your own risk.

To the right of the Hotels beach is a short walk to the Hilton Beach Hotel and surrounding beaches.

If you walk to the left side of the Hotels Beach, you will eventually meet the South Coast's BoardWalk. This Board Walk runs from Hastings all the way to Accra Beach, and is good for strolling or taking a nice run amongst the seaside. The Boardwalk is also decorated with many bars and restaurants. We do not advise to use the boardwalk after dark, as it is not fully lit and not always patrolled by police.

All beaches in Barbados are public; therefore you may be approached at the beach by vendors who can become over-enthusiastic on occasions. If you do not wish to inspect their goods, just say "no thank you". Any purchases made from these vendors are at your own risk.

**Also, please avoid using the aloe plant in its natural form, this is sold by vendors at the beach, as it causes permanent stains on fabrics and clothing.****
