

♥ your Photographer

Of all the vendors that you select for your wedding celebration I think that the photographer might be the most important. On your big day, the beautiful invitations, delicious food, signature cocktail and lively music all make the day special. The photographer is key to making you feel comfortable and relaxed, keeping your complicated timeline on track and just as important, their work is what you will have forever.

Look for a photographer with warmth and professionalism, talent and tact. When you interview potential photographers make sure that you look beyond the images and try to get a sense of the person behind the camera. On a day with so much anticipation (and stress) you really, really need to be comfortable with this person. When the last dance has been danced and you are settling in to your new lives together you will look back on this day for years to come. Your photos will reflect the joy and love of the day and the magic of you.

Getting Ready

First Look

First Kiss

Candid shots

I Do

First Dance

