DINE AT WHITCOMB'S, FOR THEIR NEWLY LAUNCH MENU OF SEASONAL CLASSICS

For those looking to wine and dine their Fathers, Whitcomb's is serving their newly launched menu of French and Mediterranean classics. Diners can expect escargots served with a butter and parsley sauce; lamb cutlets marinated in Dijon mustard; and indulgent fresh lobster linguine with San Marzano. For something sweet, the dessert menu offers a steady stream of French treats, including tarte au fraises, set on a basil-infused sponge with citrus curd and marinated strawberries, alongside an exotic combination of mango, passion fruit and lime, the Savarin tropical is served with a scoop of coconut sorbet. To share, diners will find chouquettes, a selection of choux pastry puffs filled with whipped Jivara chocolate ganache and caramelized pecans, and a gateau au fromage made from calvados apples served with a cassis compote and vanilla bean ice cream - all to be enjoyed alongside an array of sweet wines.

GLENFIDDICH AND THE TIME RE: IMAGINED COLLECTION

The Glenfiddich Time Re: Imagined Collection consists of three extraordinary single malt whiskies that each capture a moment in time; Suspended Time (30 Year Old), Cumulative Time (40 Year Old), Simultaneous Time (50 Year Old). Matured over decades, each whisky has developed a richness and depth of flavour that is rarely encountered.

The Glenfiddich 50 Year Old Simultaneous Time liquid takes whiskies from three different American Oak refill casks, all matured in the same warehouse before being married together and finished in an American oak refill cask for two years. There are only 220 decanters of this precious liquid in this release, making it an extremely rare and sought-after collectors' item. Many factors affect whisky maturing in the cask, including climatic conditions: Air pressure, temperature and humidity. The nature of maturation changes with these conditions. Hot summers speed up the maturation process and cold winters slow it down – dramatically affecting the outcome of the liquid. These climatic conditions are unique to that time and day, they can never be replicated. The development of the oak character, in combination with these climatic conditions, gives the whisky its unique taste. The outer casing is an artistic representation of the climatic data that created this extraordinary whisky. Manuel Jiménez García, a computational architect, decrypted the meteorological data into an algorithm, and generated a physical design language to build the structure's bespoke form bringing life to every second of every day, of every month of those fifty years.

Glenfiddich Simultaneous Time 50 Year Old tasting notes:

Colour – Antique gold

Nose – Rich orange peel and clementine meet complex notes of Madeira cake and muscovado sugar. Maturing over time into the dewy petrichor of a Dufftown morning, mingling with flowering geranium. Taste – A lingering sweetness softens into deep, silky smooth oak tannin and sun-dried vanilla. Finish – Oaky, sweet and incredibly long lasting.
