THE MILNER
YORK

Can you imagine your dream wedding day against the backdrop of our Grade-II listed hotel steeped in history with a story or three to tell, with that iconic view to York Minster and surrounded by three acres of beautifully landscaped gardens?

We hope you are thinking...

YES!

THE MILNER YORK

The roots of our hotel lie firmly embedded in the great 'Railway Age', back when iron roads were criss-crossing the country.

The Station Hotel opened in 1853 with 15 reception rooms and 55 bedrooms and on 14th September 1854, Queen Victoria honoured it with her presence when she stopped there for lunch on her way to Scotland...before leaving without paying!

The hotel's owners felt quite justified in adding 'Royal' to its name and continued the practice when the new hotel was built – you can see the original station and hotel near Tanner Row, where they are used as the Eastern Region headquarters of British Rail.

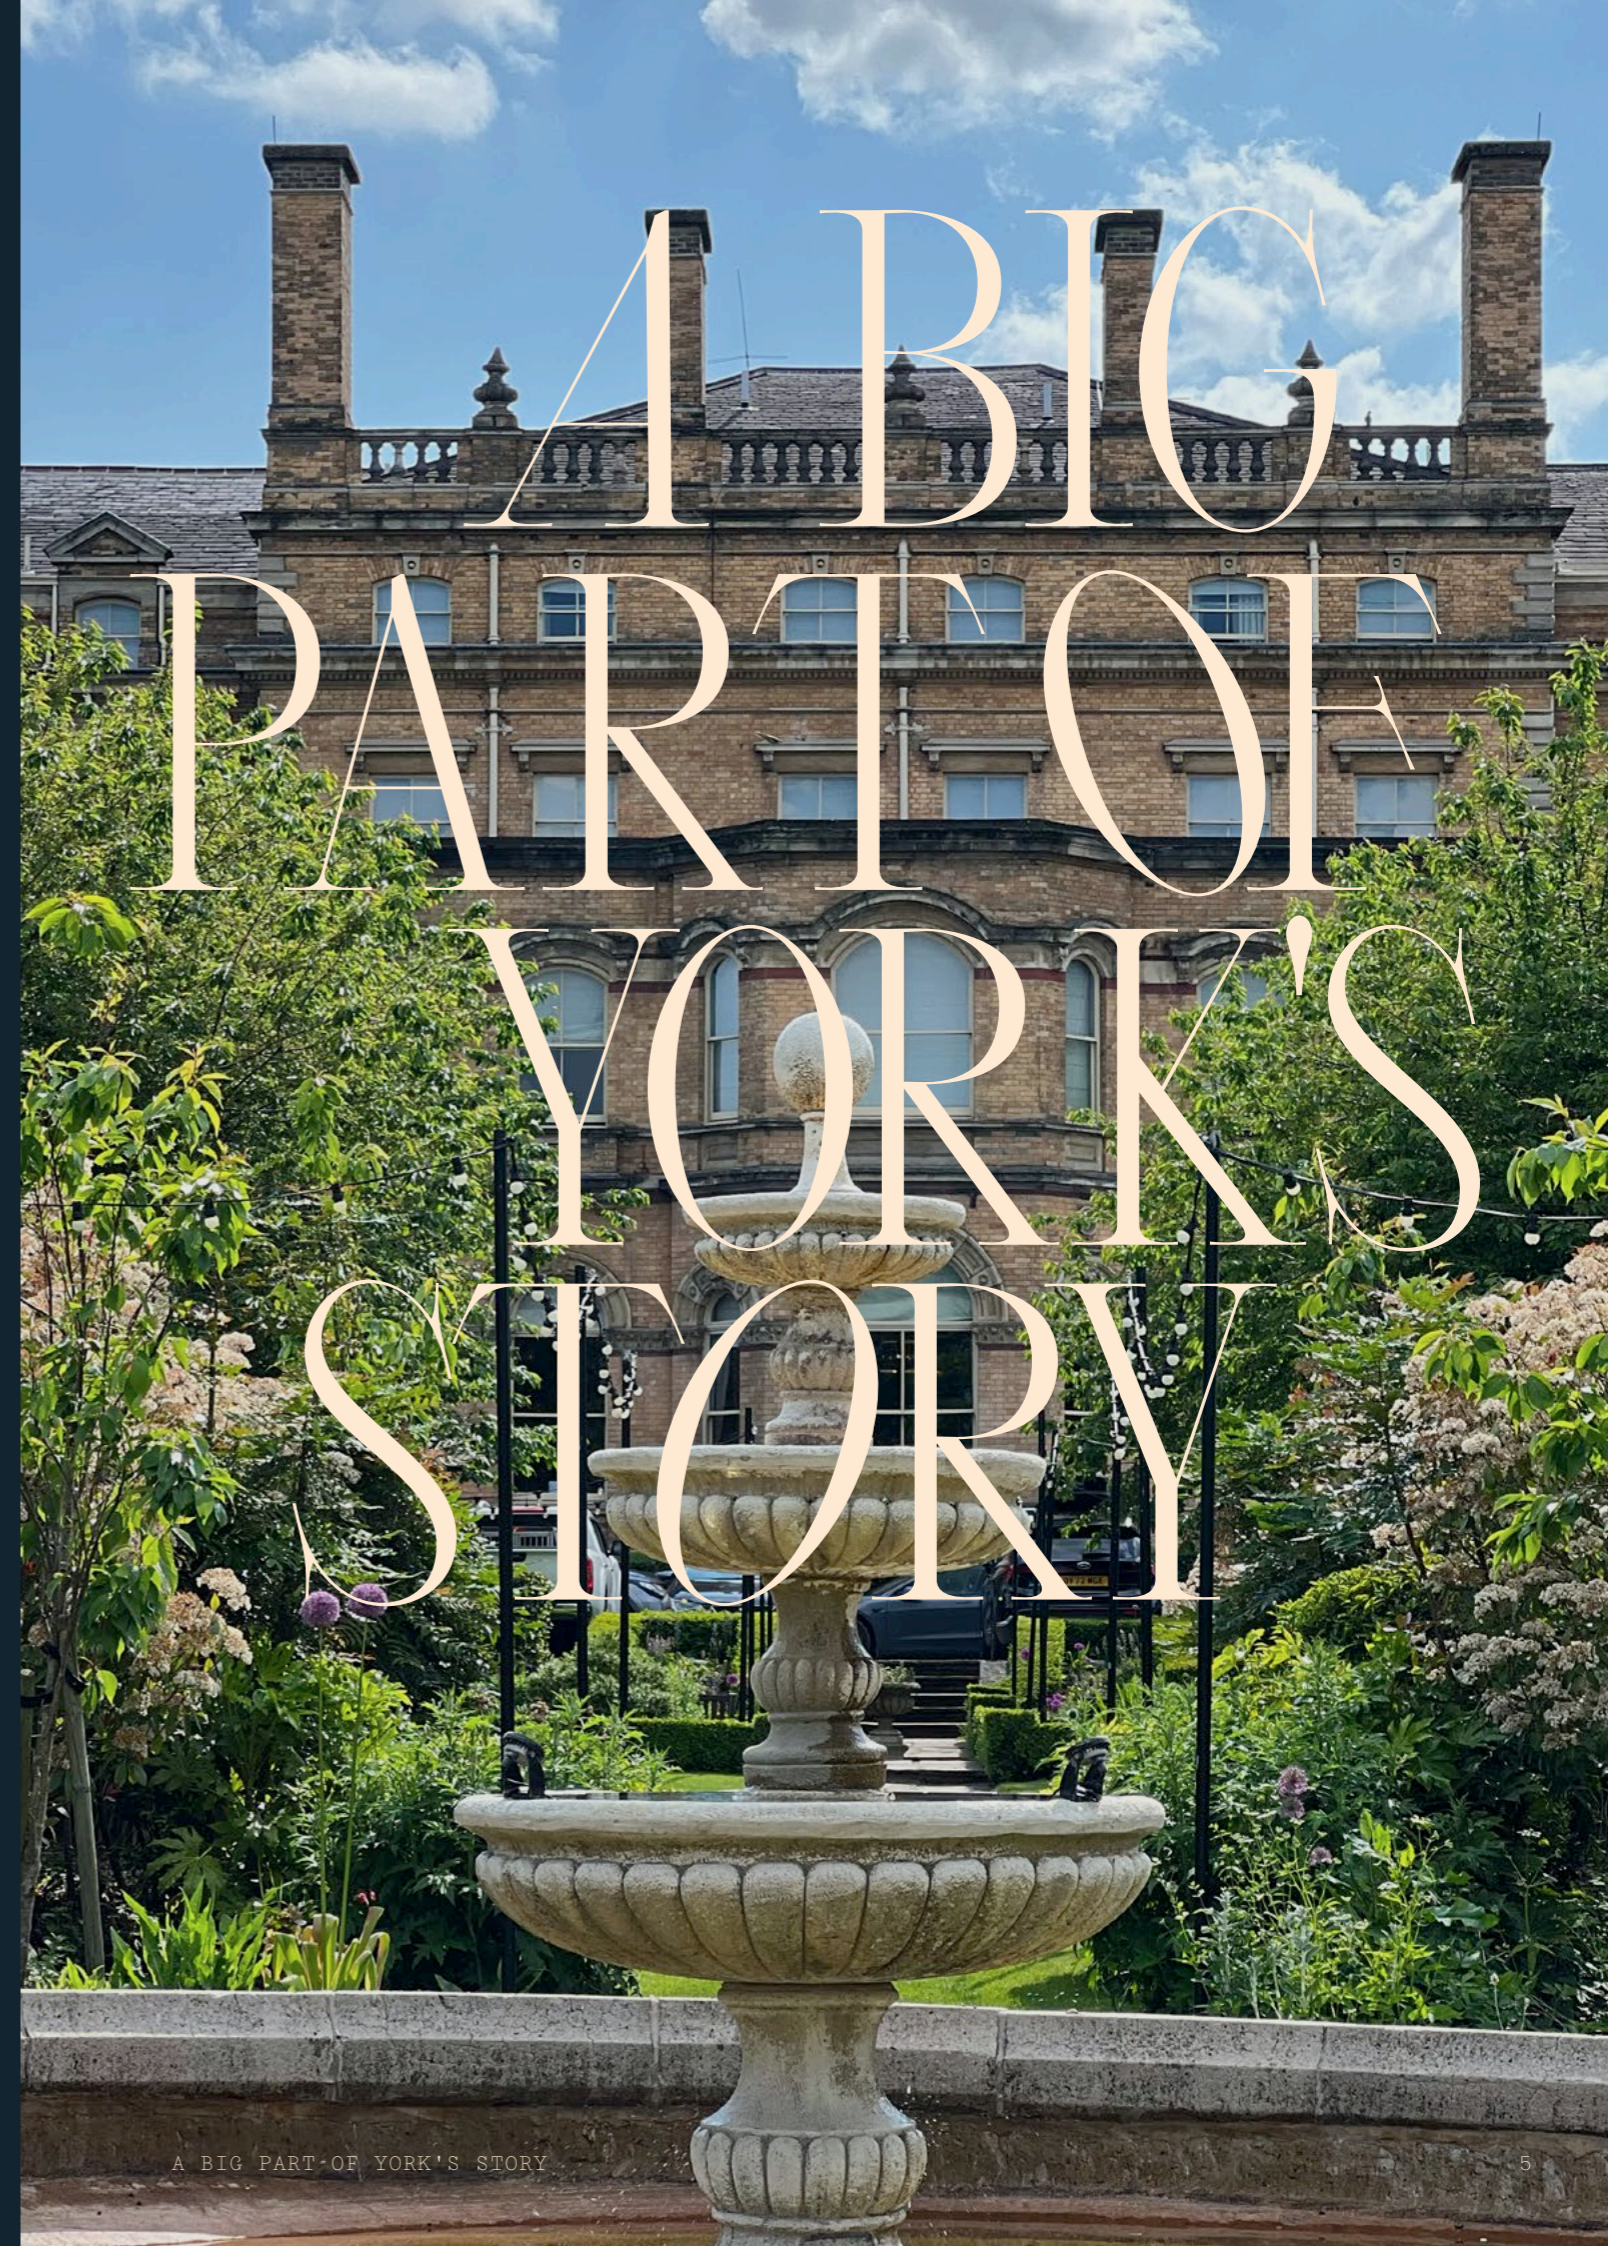

By 1865 it was recognised that York station had outgrown its purpose and The North Eastern Railway Company decided to build a new station outside the city walls.

The railways heralded the birth of the 'hotel age,' and architect William Peachey designed this hotel as part of the new station. It served as the North Eastern Railway Company's flagship hotel, catering to the northern aristocracy, wealthy Yorkshire industrialists, and anyone who could afford the 14-shilling-per-night rate.

The station opened its doors on 25th June 1877 followed a year later in May 1878 The Royal Station Hotel (now The Milner York) with elegant, high-ceilinged banqueting rooms, 100 large bedrooms and the showstopping main staircase – supported on one side only, it forms three upper galleries and provides spectacular views whether you're looking up or down.

DID YOU KNOW...

OUR BANQUET ROOMS DATE BACK TO 1878 AND HAVE BEEN HOSTING BRIDES AND GROOMS ON THEIR SPECIAL DAY EVER SINCE.

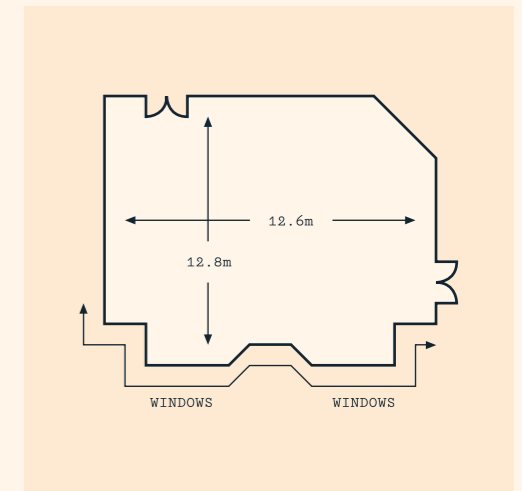

The Oak Room is one of our most grand and beautifully crafted rooms. Vailed with original features from when it was built in 1896, including magnificent oak-panelled walls, an imposing fireplace, and cut-glass chandeliers, it's nothing short of spectacular.

Bathe in light and take in the finest details with the double-height sash windows with sweeping views of the hotel gardens and York Minster.

The room also boasts access to the Oak Room Terrace with bar, seating and heaters for the colder evenings.
