

Travel Thursday: Why You Should Check into These Hotels for World Pride

April 4, 2019 by Ryan Shea

World Pride is less than three months away! New York City will be filled with millions of visitors who will no doubt be looking for a fabulous place to stay during the pandemonium that will be this epic weekend.

I've been a local in Manhattan and the surrounding areas most of my life and have been able to navigate the incredible hotel scene here for years. Some of the best places to lay your head at night are in The Big Apple and beyond, as the amenities that they provide will give you something to look forward to amid all the World Pride celebrating you'll be doing.

What's even better is that there are a couple of spots that aren't directly in New York City but still provide a wonderful escape from the noise and chaos.

Check out 11, yes, 11 hotels that this writer thinks are worth staying at during World Pride.

Credit: Kimberly Hotel

The Kimberly Hotel: 145 E. 50th Street

The Kimberly Hotel is one of Midtown East's finest spots in the city. It's regal exterior and interior are certainly inviting, as are their sister restaurants Bistango (delicious Italian cuisine) and Empire Steak House.

Credit: Kimberly Hotel

It's one of the quietest atmospheres you'll experience in Manhattan. Not only that, but the rooms itself are of the highest quality in terms of design, look and overall spaciousness. They also have a fabulous rooftop bar called Upstairs at the Kimberly where you can enjoy a couple of cocktails with friends prior to heading out for the big weekend. They are also a quick subway ride away from the beginning of the parade route on 26th and 5th. More here.